Berea College Starts Campaign For $1,000,000

Great Movement Launched At Annual Commencement This Week With Big Attendance

Commencement exercises at Berea College commenced Wednesday brought to a close the first year of the administration of the new president, William J. Hutchins—one of the most successful years in Berea's history. Diplomas were awarded to over 250 students in all departments, most of whom will go back to the mountains, fifty as teachers. Two thousand four hundred and ninety students attended Berea during the year, more of them staying over a longer period of time than in any previous year in Berea's history. Eighty per cent of these students were from the mountain counties of the southern Appalachians.

A crowd estimated at 3,000, who had ridden or driven in from the surrounding country, attended the ceremonies of Commencement Day. Prominent among these was the laying of the cornerstone of the "F. E. Memorial," which will replace the old Union church, the "Mother of Berea College," long unable to accommodate its increasing congregation. The new edifice will cost $700,000, of which $32,000 was subscribed by members of the Berea faculty and residents of Berea. As in the past, the services will be non-sectarian.

Features of Commencement week were the two fine performances of "Robin Hood" by the Harmonia Society, the performance of "The Winter's Tale," by the Academy seniors, and the Normal seniors play, "The Pillars of Society." The baccalaureate sermon on Sunday was delivered by President Hutchins, and the address to the students by Dr. Moss, D.D., of Columbus, O. Commencement Day addresses were given by President Emeritus Wm. G. Frost, and Dr. Jonathan C. Day, pastor of the Labor Temple, New York City.

Formal announcement that a campaign for one million dollars, to be known as the "Berea Necessity Fund," will be carried on next fall and winter, was preceded by a series of enthusiastic meetings of undergraduates in the interests of the campaign. Ten thousand five hundred dollars was pledged at a meeting of the Normal school student body and it is believed that the pledges of the other departments will bring the total undergraduate subscriptions to many times this amount.

Hitherto the entire burden of raising the great sums necessary to finance the work of Berea has been carried on by President Emeritus Wm. G. Frost, and one or two devoted assistants. Under present conditions, however, the strain of raising large sums of money entirely by personal work, has become so great that the trustees have decided to carry on a nationwide campaign this fall and winter for essential funds.

Dr. Jonathan C. Day, a former Kentucky mountain boy, will devote his entire time next winter to this campaign. As outlined by Dr. Day the plans will include a series of meetings throughout the United States and use of a two reel motion picture film showing the life of the College. It is hoped by this film to enlist the interest and support of a great number of public spirited citizens who have hitherto had no knowledge of the work of Berea, in addition to those already interested. Heavy expenses during the past year and the passing up of dividends on which a part of Berea's income is dependent, due to depressed business conditions, have made the campaign all the more imperative.

The "Necessity Fund" will be used to provide essential equipment and to maintain and increase salaries. Five hundred students a year are being turned away for lack of room. Students are living in old houses and barracks. Old store buildings are used for recitation rooms. The College department with 282 students is practically relegated to one floor in the Administration Hall. Every department needs more room

DEBRIS STREWN FOR MILES IN FLOOD AREA

(By Associated Press)
Denver, Colo., June 8—Ten million dollars worth of Pueblo goods and scores of bodies of Pueblo citizens lie strewn in mire of inundated farms for 35 miles south on both sides of the raging Arkansas river, below Pueblo, according to dispatches today to the Denver Times from staff correspondents, who were the first to penetrate that section.

Danger of Pestilence—Passes In Pueblo

Pueblo, Colo., June 8—Danger of pestilence following last Friday's disastrous flood has passed, according to officials of the U. S. Public Health Service, there is plenty of food, shelter has been provided in a refuge camp to relieve the congestion in churches, schools and private homes, and an army of men has been at work clearing the streets of debris, removing dead animals and clearing out the business places.

Part of the city again is lighted with electricity. The gas company has nearly completed preparations to supply gas for heat and light. The city water plant is functioning, and tomorrow a water purifier will prepare for human consumption 5,000,000 gallons of water daily.

The military order compelling all able-bodied men to work has brought out an army of laborers. The city has been remarkably free from lawlessness under the circumstances, only a few arrests having been made for looting.

State's Attorney Opens Probe of Tulsa Riots

Tulsa, Okla., June 8—Attorney General S. P. Freeling arrived here today and immediately began an investigation into the race fighting and incendiarism of a week ago.

It is hoped to enlist the co-operation of the Alumni on a far wider scale than ever before in this effort to finance Berea's ever growing needs. The active campaign will begin October first.

A. T. HERT DROPS DEAD IN WASHINGTON

Stricken With Apoplexy While Talking With Friends—Funeral In Louisville Friday

(By Associated Press)
Louisville, Ky., June 8—The funeral services of A. T. Hert, whose body will arrive here tonight, will be held at his estate near here, Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The cortege will move directly to Cave Hill Cemetery, where the body will be deposited in a vault. Mrs. Hert particularly requests no flowers.

Death Due To Apoplexy

Washington, June 8—Dispatches say that Mr. Hert suffered from high blood pressure some time ago and had been concerned over his health. Yesterday upon his arrival in Washington he complained of indigestion and a physician put him to bed. Later in the afternoon while talking to friends he gave a gasp and fell back dead. Physicians said that death was due apparently to apoplexy due to pressure on the heart, resulting from acute indigestion.

Messages of sympathy continued to pour into the Hert home while tributes from men prominent in the state and nation, were printed in the newspapers.

The story of Hert's rise from a traveling salesman in Indiana, includes his appointment as head of the Indiana State Reformatory at Jeffersonville. A lucky investment in Indiana coal lands, the sale of which netted him $75,000, and reinvestment of that money, which ultimately made him head of the croquet business, netted him an income of over six hundred thousands dollars annually.

In politics Mr. Hert rose from mayor of Brazil, Indiana, to Republican National Committeeman for Kentucky, and a power in national politics.

Washington, June 8—Alvin T. Hert, of Louisville, Republican national committeeman from Kentucky, suddenly died here today at the New Willard hotel here.

Mr. Hert was 56 years of age. He had come here to attend the meeting of the Republican National Committee tomorrow.

Death came to Mr. Hert with such swiftness that within a moment a smile on his face as he joked with friends was changed to an expression of pain. He gasped for breath a moment later he had passed away.

He was reclining on his bed in his apartment at the Willard hotel when he was stricken at 4:15 o'clock this afternoon. Apoplexy was the cause, Congressman J. W. Langley and J. M. Robison and Matt Chilton, of Louisville, the latter having accompanied Mr. Hert here yesterday, were still chuckling over one of Mr. Hert's good-natured jests when they were shocked to see him in the throes of death.

First Became Ill On Train

Mr. Langley ran for a glass of water while others frantically tried to call a doctor. A vet-trol was placed on Mr. Hert's face and his arms were massaged, but there was no reaction. Death had come to one of the leaders of the Republican party.

While an effort was still being made to call medical aid Dr. Lyman Sexton, of Washington, who had been called to administer to Mr. Hert earlier in the day, when it was thought that he was only slightly indisposed, returned. Even had he been present when the attack first came he said he would have been helpless to save him.

Mr. Hert first became ill while on the train enroute to Washington from Louisville. His valet, George Lund, administered to him as best he could. After reaching here Mr. Hert felt much better, believing that he only had a slight attack of indigestion. He made no mention of having felt ill when friends called on him last evening. However, he again became ill after he had retired and spent a restless night. It was not until this morning, however, that he consented to the calling of a doctor.

PERIOD SHORTENED AT CAMP BOONE

The period for the Richmond boys who go to Camp Daniel Boone has been shortened this year because of the late closing of many schools. The local period will run from June 20 to June 29 and the fee for the nine day period has been reduced to $10. Mr. Stone Norman, who went as a leader, with the local crowd last year, has just received a letter from E. V. Donaldson, state boys' work secretary, telling of the new plans. He says the outlook is splendid for a fine camp this year with better leaders and more fun for the youngsters. He wants Mr. Norman back but the latter has not yet decided whether he can find time to leave his work as local Red Cross secretary long enough for such an outing.

JUNE 27 LAST DAY FOR CANDIDATES

The approach of the last day for filing papers declaring intention of becoming a candidate for office is bringing candidates into the light and from now on hats will be shed into the ring frequently. Under the law declaration papers must be filed at least forty days before the primary. This year the primary falls on August 6, which would make June 27 the last day for filing papers.

Court day was a busy one for the "boys" in Madison and they were all out shaking hands with the voters who came to town.

GEORGE COLVIN TALKS TO KENTUCKY PRESS

Danville, Ky., June 8—Kentucky editors, members of the Kentucky Press Association, in annual mid-summer session here, were guests of Danville Chamber of Commerce at a banquet last night. After the banquet the editors attended the annual class play at Centre College.

At Tuesday's session of the convention, the editors discussed local news and other problems of the profession in the state. Jas. M. Ross and Keen Johnson, of Lexington, delivered addresses. Mr. Ross spoke on "The Value of Local News," and Mr. Johnson on "Making Newspaper Men."

George Colvin, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, who was present, made a plea to the editors to back the movement designed to take the school system entirely out of politics by aiding in passing an amendment to the constitution to make the state superintendent appointive instead of elective. He also urged them to back an amendment that would allow 10 per cent of the state school funds to be apportioned in a manner different than at present.

Snake Eats Snake

Clyde and Ralph Bennett, sons of R. D. Bennett, of Caldwell's farming section, heard a noise in the brush near the roadside. Investigating they discovered a black snake six feet long, holding a copperhead three feet long between its jaws and shaking it fiercely. Finally killing the copperhead the black snake seized it by the head and swallowed it gradually. The boys watched the one-sided fight with great interest and being fully in sympathy with the black snake made no effort to disturb him.—Harrodsburg Herald.

Shot In Night Kills Merchant Autoing

London, Ky., June 8—George Jones, a young merchant and coal operator at East Bernstadt, was shot near London last night and died a few hours later. Jones was riding on the running board of an automobile when a bullet fired from a distance of more than 100 yards, pierced his head.

Chris Evans, an old man who lived nearby, was lodged in jail here last night charged with the shooting.

Boys passing Evans' cabin frequently tormented him with jokes and it is believed he fired at the body of the machine to give vent to his anger. Feeling was high against him and for a time it appeared that an armed crowd in East Bernstadt would try to take him from the officers.

STATE TROOPS SENT TO BARBOURVILLE

Former Army Officer Kills Will Lee—No Renewal of Feud Trouble Expected

(By Associated Press)
Barbourville, Ky., June 8—Bar S. Reid, a former army officer, who yesterday shot and killed Will Lee, will be given a preliminary hearing Thursday. It was announced today. Reid would make no statement of his reasons for killing Lee. State troops from London are today policing the courthouse and down town streets but all is quiet and no further trouble is expected.

In expectation that the killing would result in a renewal of the Bailey-White feud, members of both factions today asserted that the killing was not in the nature of a feud fight.

Barbourville, Ky., June 8—State troops were called out here last night to stop a threatened outbreak following an affray yesterday in which William Lee, of upper Knox county, was shot and killed by Bar Reid, former army officer. Lee is said to have threatened Lee because of statements the latter is alleged to have made in connection with indictments returned against Jim Lee, his brother, charged with shooting Josh Faulkner last week.

It was feared that Lee's friends might try to avenge the killing.

The affair Tuesday is believed to add another chapter to the Bailey-White difficulty. Wm. Lee is supposedly a friend and supporter of the Baileys, and Reid is said to be a distant relative of Beverly White, who was killed several weeks ago by John Bailey.

Reid P. Black, sheriff of Knox county, resigned today. His successor has not been chosen.

The Bailey-White feud is one of the oldest of the Kentucky mountain feuds. Dating back fully a quarter of a century, it has been marked by sporadic killings of members or participants of one or the other of the families for many years.

Cantrill A Prophet

A split in the ranks of the Republican party over the tariff question was predicted at Lexington by Congressman J. Campbell Cantrill. He expressed the belief that there would either be a defection from Republican ranks toward the Democratic party, or some such movement as the Progressive of 1912.

"I look to see the West won back within the next year or so to the Democratic ranks as a result of the tariff law that will be passed by the Republican majority in Congress at this session," Mr. Cantrill said. "The tariff is made by the manufacturing interests in the east, and their interests are not those of the agricultural west. Reaction toward the Democratic party, or some such defection as that of the Progressives, is sure to result."

Likes Sapir Plan

Sapir, the marketing expert who has awakened the tobacco growers of Kentucky to their possibilities, spoke in Elizabethtown the other day outlining the much-discussed co-operative plan. He comes to Richmond next Tuesday, the 14th. After hearing him fully, Editor Harry Sommers, of the Elizabethtown News, had the following which will be read with interest:

The tobacco business in Kentucky seems to be shot to pieces from the low prices realized from the 1920 crop. The production of tobacco is one of the very greatest interests in our state. Thousands of our people depend upon tobacco for a living, and many more thousands depend upon it for any surplus money they may earn. It is not only a big thing for the grower, but it is a big thing for the banks and the commercial interests in the state.

While the tobacco growers in 1921 made no money as a whole, the tobacco manufacturing concerns that bought the crop made enormous dividends.

The profits in tobacco are not fairly divided between the grower and the manufacturer, as the latter plays safe through co-operation and is thus able to hog the bulk of the people.

Co-operative marketing of tobacco, based on the principle which have been so successful in California as applied to fruits and other products, seems to present the only hope to tobacco growers. If the California co-operative marketing of prunes can so increase the demand for prunes as to more than double the production, and at the same time double the price, we can see no reason why the same thing cannot be accomplished with tobacco, operating the same way. At present the tobacco growers get only 8 per cent of the price paid by the consumer of the weed, when he should get at least 50 per cent.

It will continue this way until the growers, by co-operative marketing, have something to say as to the price of his commodity.

R. L. CLARK

The plan, as outlined by Mr. Sapir, the California expert, for the organization of the barley tobacco growers, seems to us both feasible and practical. As he stated in his speech here Monday, even if the plan fails, the growers are no worse off. In other words, the growers take no risk by joining together in an association to control, in a great measure, their product.

The barley association will not be organized unless 75 per cent of the growers go into it, and they must go into it for five years to insure a reasonable control of the market. The organization is a self-protective one, and seeks to prevent the product of the toil, labor and expense of the grower being placed at the mercy of a few buyers, who act co-operatively.

The warehouses will be taken over and used to store and grade the tobacco, and the owner of warehouse receipts can borrow money from the banks, if he needs it at any time, until his crop is sold.

It cuts out millions of dollars of expense which the buyer now has in securing the crop, so that he can afford to add this amount to the cost price of the weed. On the other hand, it cuts out the big expense of operating the warehouse which the grower also has to pay.

The plan has met with the hearty and unanimous endorsement of the bankers all over the state, and we have yet to find one of these financiers who can discover a single fault with the plan.

It will not be an experiment for tobacco growers, because the experiment has been made in California, and our people are in a position to avoid the mistakes which were made in the early stages in California, and start out with a plan that is workable, because it has been demonstrated and profitable, because it has proved profitable in prunes, oranges, nuts and raisins. It will be equally profitable in tobacco.

It will be many a day before the smile will come to the face of the readers of the Cincinnati Enquirer that they had acquired as a matter of course, when they turned to Luke McLuke's column each morning. The great humorist is dead. He was a wonder in his chosen line, a real star of the profession and a long-felt gap is made in the ranks of the real geniuses of the game who make the Enquirer the great paper it is—and who include the man who writes the first page headlines, Jack Ryder, and the artists who place the ponies on the form sheet just where they run on the track. A real newspaper is the Enquirer, but how we'll all miss jolly old Luke McLuke and his Corn-Feds.

Robert Lee Page, prominent Louisville lawyer, known to many friends here as "Bob" Page, is said to have been agreed upon as the Democratic candidate for Mayor of Louisville.

Governor Morrow has pardoned Frank Blair, a proven bandit and hold-up man, on the grounds that he was drunk at the time he held up and robbed a safe in Louisville, and tried to murder the proprietor, and therefore he was not responsible.

Carnival Concludes

Engagement Today

The Miller Bros. Carnival which has been playing here this week under the auspices of the Jesse M. Dykes Post of the American Legion, will leave tonight for a week's engagement at Frankfort. The Carnival has been quite a success in every respect, having had very favorable weather and large crowds.

Miller Bros. have conducted their show in a most pleasing manner to the Legion boys and it is hoped by the community that the show will return at an early date.

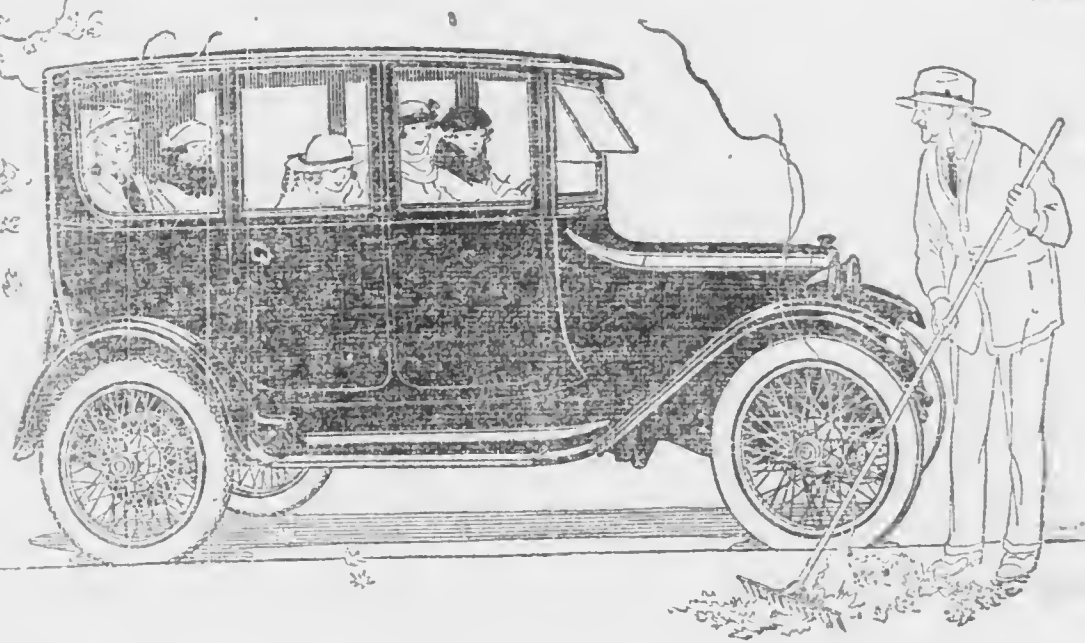

The legionnaires state that their receipts from the carnival will be used to equip a local band of which James Leeds will be leader.

IN THE MOVIES

A big crowd witnessed "Humoresque" which was presented at the local theatres here Thursday. This is one of the best pictures brought to Richmond for some time and will be shown again at the opera house tonight.

You Must Not Miss

This is the sort of thing those who have been optimists about photoplays have long insisted the screen could do best—portray real, everyday human life, with humor, pathos and beauty. This picture is one to which these optimists can point to justify their hopes for photoplays. The fulfillment of these dreams and the final triumph of the family through its gifted mother are set forth with rare insight and artistic skill by the Director Frank Borzage.

In its quiet realism, in its mingling of laughing and tears, in its use of minor incidents to build up a strong dramatic situation, the production recalls Griffith at his best. But where Griffith is given to punctuating his stories with melodramatic events this director has resisted that temptation and the story remains one which might have happened in every day life.

What the picture does contain is a wonderful story of home life and of mother love. It happens to concern a Jewish family and Jewish characters are used to furnish some rare humor, as they do in Fannie Hurst's published stories. But in its truth to human nature it might concern any devoted family of any race or locality.

There are so many good points in the production that one could go on at length and not mention them all. I would rather urge you to discover them for yourself than to try to describe them for you.

"Humoresque" besides being one of the most artistic pictures ever made is also one which everyone is sure to enjoy whether he cares a rap for artistic effects or not. It holds and it moves one to laughter and tears just because it is human and real. When it is finished you agree it is an excellent production. But while you are seeing it you forget that it is not reality itself. It is woven from the stuff of which human lives are made.—Genevieve Harris in Chicago Post.

Bert Lytell Finds

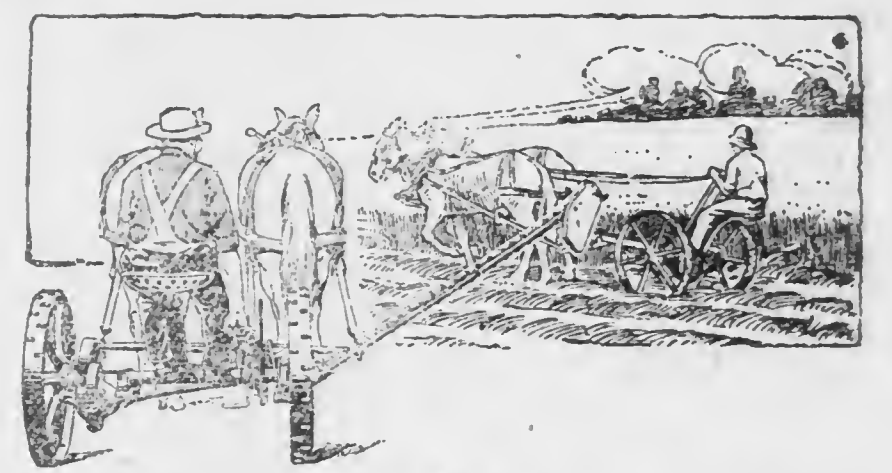

Relief In Comedy

Light comedy, action such as is provided in "The Misleading Lady" is particularly restful after a long series of dramatic and melodramatic roles. Bert Lytell, the magnetic young Metro star, remarked between scenes of the screen production of the Charles Goddard-Paul Dickey play at the company's Sixty First street studio in New York City. The picture is now completed and will be shown at the local theatres Thursday.

"Like so many dramatic actors," said Mr. Lytell, "I have done a great many comedy parts in the course of my career. And I like them especially after the strain, the intensity of such work as doing Charles Steele in 'The Right of Way' or 'Alias Jimmy Valentine' or my latest 'The Price of Redemption'."

"People may think in seeing a picture on a theatre screen that it is easily done—that the actor reads his part, rehearses the action a while and is ready for the camera. I have no way of gauging whether it is so far some, but with me I must confess a big part falls me out."

George Irving directed Metro.

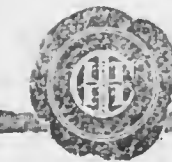

Why the McCormick Mower is Dependable

A BREAKDOWN during the rush time of the haying season often means considerable loss to you. It may delay your cutting so that your hay becomes over-ripe and loses part of its nourishment, or it may prolong the haying season until wet weather destroys a part of its feeding value.

There's mighty little danger of breakdowns when you buy a McCormick mower. It has no unnecessary parts to wear out and give trouble. It has less parts than any other mower. For years and years the McCormick has been celebrated for its simplicity and durability. It has given satisfaction to thousands of hay growers. What it has done for others it will do for you. Come in and let's talk it over.

THIS WYOMING TOWN LIKES WOMEN'S RULE

(By Associated Press)
Jackson, Wyo., June 8.—Jackson, after a year's trial of petticoat government, has found it good. Had a county ago, the first jury of women to be organized in the United States was organized in Wyoming, and 20 years later Wyoming is still the only state in the Union where the women have a voice in its constitution and laws. Giving women equal rights with men, S. S. S. Co. is a firm, most modern, and most successful business. And so, the votes were counted on Tuesday night, they found the following result:

For mayor, Mr. Grace Miller, 57; L. W. Spicer, 21.

For councilmen: Mrs. Genevieve Van Vleet, 67; G. R. Blaine, 19; Mrs. Paulina Haight, 66; Almer Nelson, 18.

Just a year ago this picturesque little western town, with a population of 526 by the latest census, nestled beneath the beetling peaks of the Giant Teton, in the heart of the famed Jackson Hole country, started the nation by turning out its man-made administration and installing a town government made up entirely of women. The victory was all the more notable because of the fact that Mrs. Rose Crabtree had been elected to the town council over her husband. Evidently the women of Jackson had decided to spoil the town's glamorous reputation as the rendezvous for bad boys and twogan desperadoes.

The exact issue in the campaign a year ago is a matter for argument but whatever it was the women won decisively. This year it was the same thing over, a three to one landslide.

During their year's tenure, the five women of the town's administration managed to keep Jackson clean, morally and physically, and in addition they brought about a number of municipal improvements. They transformed what used to be country lanes into city streets; they acquired a site for a cemetery to take the place of the old family burying ground; and they are now working on a plan for a modern, adequate water system to replace the old out system of irrigating ditch water by nearby Cache Creek.

A few days after the election, Mrs. 10, Mrs. Pearl Williams, the town's 22-year-old marshal, announced that she would not seek reappointment of the new administration. When asked why and she replied: "I've had plenty. Besides, Jackson has become so quiet and orderly that the town doesn't need a marshal any more."

TO START CAMPAIGN FOR BETTER SHEEP

(By Associated Press)

Lexington, Ky., June 7.—In order to assist farmers of the state in selecting those sheep from their flocks which are the most profitable from the standpoint of wool and lamb production and to suggest the best methods of mating, a sheep culling campaign touching ten counties will be started July 1st by the Animal Husbandry Department of the College of Agriculture. The campaign will be in charge of R. C. Miller.

The first county to be visited will be Carroll county. Other counties already chosen are Owen, Boone, Fayette, Oldham and Jefferson. A number of western Kentucky counties will be elected later. The work will continue through the summer and fall with the cooperation of county agents.

County agents will arrange community meetings at which the extension specialists will address sheep raisers. Moving pictures and lantern slides will be used. These meetings will be held at night and on the following day a demonstration of culling sheep will be held on a farm in the same community.

The plan of farming offers greater opportunities for profit than sheep raising providing proper attention is given to the selection of the foundation stock and subsequent mating in order to produce the best lambs as well as the largest wool clip, said Mr. Miller in speaking of the campaign. "It will be the object of the campaign to assist farmers in selecting only those animals which give indication of being the best ones for improving the quality of wool as well as the number of lambs. Many ewes are not suited to breeding purposes, some of them being too old, some lacking constitution, some quality and others have a coarse fleece. By helping farmers to eliminate these animals it is hoped that the standard of the flocks of the state will be raised."

Robert S. Smallwood, editor of the Benayville Enterprise, paid the Register office a pleasant call Wednesday.

HORSE FIGHTS ENRAGED LION

Circus Audience in Ohio Gets Real Thrill as Jung's Great Losses Temporarily

Cincinnati.—Real thrills were provided the audience in a non-battle between a lion and a horse during a circus performance at Cincinnati. In the arena the lion leaped on and off the horse's back and the ring. Failing to get a leap from the platform to the lion, the lion hit the horse. The horse's trainer cracked his whip, the horse of habit the lion, the lion leaped on the horse's back again. It failed, but ripped off part of the horse's saddle. The lion made a second leap, its claws tore the horse's right hind leg and lacerated its back. The horse fought back gamely with its heels, kicking madly.

By this time the spectators realized that the fight was realistic. The trainer and his assistants finally drove the animals apart. The horse was treated by a veterinarian.

BEGGING LESS, CRIME GROWS

France Finds More Women and Children in the Criminal Class Since War.

Paris.—There is 80 per cent less begging in France than previous to 1914, according to police statistics, but theft has increased in about the same proportion.

The police explain this phenomena by saying that the temptation constantly held out to the daily inclined to enjoy themselves appeals to those who cannot afford it as well as to those who can.

Criminality among women and children has notably increased. Among 100 persons found guilty of crime before the war there were 32 women and five minors; there are now 50 women and 14 minors in every 100 convicted. Besides the temptation to have a good time, the police say sensational moving pictures have had a great deal to do with the development of crime among women and children.

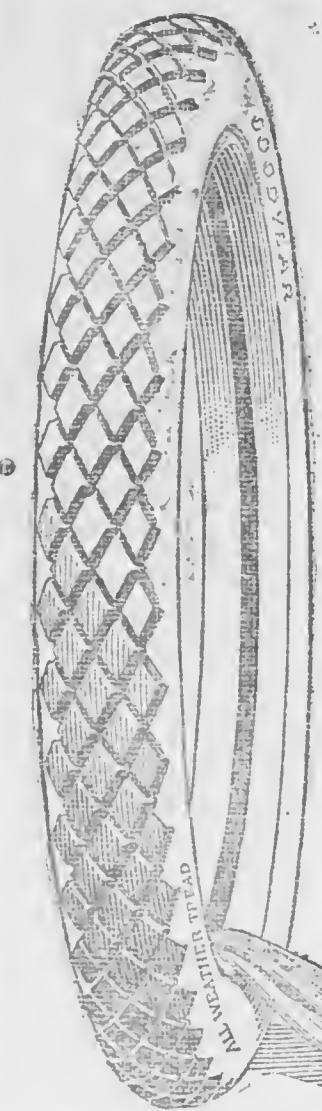

South Dakota Cowboy Repes a Live Eagle

A Correction

The clipping taken from the Winchester papers which was published in the Daily Register Tuesday in which Jack Hardin was mentioned in a wreck with the car of Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Jackson, of that city, was untrue according to the information received this morning. Mr. Hardin was not out of the city Sunday and it would hardly seem possible that he could have been in a wreck when he was not riding in a car that day. The correction is gladly made and Jack's many friends are glad that the report was untrue.

Live Trade Paper Highly Endorses Local Publicity

In the April issue of the Zenith we find the following:

"In 1920 the advertising bill in the United States newspapers totaled nearly $600,000,000.

"Many merchants, because they are the only dealers in the community think that advertising is a useless waste and expense. 'Why spend money advertising when the customers have to come to me, anyway?' they argue.

"The only time a customer must buy from his local store is when the mails can't reach him, and mail order business is out of the question, or when a customer is in immediate need of some article and must have it without delay.

sparkling comedy drama, will be given on the sixth night of the coming Redpath Chautauqua. The record-breaking success of the play throughout the country has been largely due to its delightful shrewdness, and its humorously complicated plot. Their qualities, their absurdities, their loquaciousness and eccentricities, all are marked by the sure craftsmanship of those popular writers.

Old Age, His Mark!

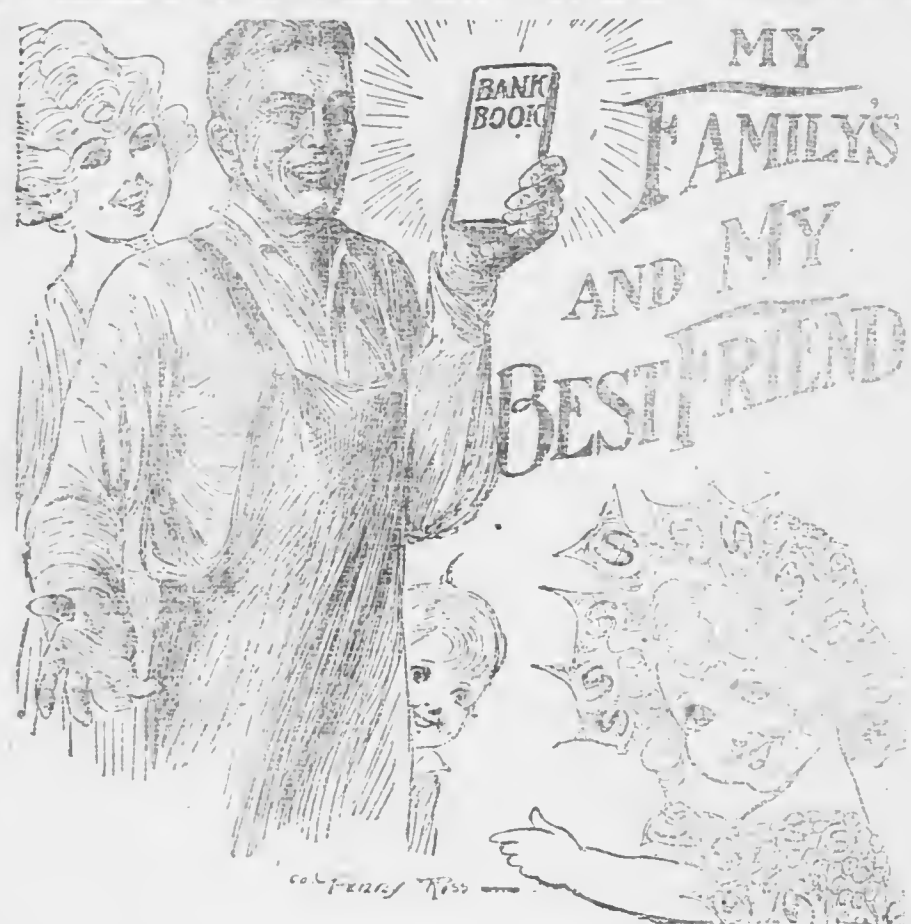

Oliver Wendell Holmes, in the charming discourses of "The Professor at the Breakfast Table," refers to an unmistakable sign of old age. It is the loss of lines from the forehead, and the deepening of the wrinkles about the eyes, and the signs just as plain.

When a woman suffers from indigestion, nervousness, sleepless nights, and those other peculiar troubles which women are prone to, she needs a "natural" remedy. When other medicine fails, she may wisely resort to the famous Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which for half a century has proved the natural restorative for these troubles. It

Artist Sketches Accurately
Things She Has Never Seen.

Transmigration of the Soul, or Theory of Reincarnation, is Rejected by Miss Sydney Dyke.

New York.—If suddenly out of nowhere came a picture to your mind which you proceeded to paint or draw, that would be no very extraordinary affair, would it?

But, if weeks later, in a new land perhaps or in a book of photographs, you saw the identical thing you had painted—what would you say? Especially if your sketch showed an ancient temple or far-off villa whose like you have never seen before?

Transmigration of the soul or the theory of reincarnation might, by some, explain such an occurrence. But Miss Sydney Dyke rejects these theories, or, rather, says she simply doesn't try to account for her "memory" pictures.

On the walls of "The Oasis," at No. 10 East Forty-seventh street, Miss Dyke's paintings hang at present. To the uninitiated they look like very interesting water-colors of landscape and design. But they are of two particular kinds, those called "symbolic portraits" and others, "memory pictures."

"Sometimes I have thought," says Miss Dyke, "that I have looked upon certain scenes in another age, another place. But I do not like to talk of transmigration."

"Yet I do believe in something like a continuity of life. For instance, there is the Villa d'Este," the painting over there with the cypress trees, a little pond and a villa in the distance. When I made that I had a strong feeling that I must put pinnacles on the building, although I thought they would be hardly the thing. Later I met some one who saw the picture and discussed it with me.

"I wanted to call it 'The Villa d'Este.' We got a book of villas and found that one really called by that very name—a fifteenth century building—had pinnacles such as I had drawn."

"Reincarnation, as an explanation, I don't like. The word is used by so many fakers that I must reject it." Miss Dyke is a tall, striking-looking young woman of handsome and wholesome aspect. Her findings are not the result of mooning over weird psychic subjects but have come naturally and simply to her attention. She has made pictures, the ideas of which interested her, and later found that they had an odd significance. From that beginning she perfected, by self-teaching, her technique in water-colors, so as better to present her subjects.

SCIENTISTS TO HUNT EGG OF BLUE GOOSE

Boston, Mass., June 8.—A hunt for the egg of the blue goose will be one of the odd errands of the Donald B. McMillan expedition to Baffin Land this year if the hopes of the ornithologists comes true. The adult blue goose, a variety with a grayish-brown body that gets its name from the blue-gray of its wing-coverts, is not uncommon in the United States but the breeding haunts have never been a subject of much speculation among bird lovers and its nest and eggs have never been observed.

An announcement by Dr. McMillan that on his last trip to the Arctic he had noticed fledglings of these geese aroused the interest of students of bird life with the result that out of the scientists who will accompany the present expedition will be commissioned to be on the lookout especially for blue goose eggs in connection with his other field work.

The price that one of these eggs, hitherto unseen by civilized man, would command, has not been quoted, but judging from the enthusiasm displayed in natural history societies over the subject, the goose that laid the golden egg will have nothing on this bird.

Baffin Land is believed to be the greatest breeding place of bird life in the far north. In the 150,000 square miles of interior unexplored by white men are lakes which the Eskimos describe as six days' sledge journey in length, (at least 100 miles) and abounding in wild fowl.

Father Schulte, Mr. R. J. McKee and Mr. Nelson Elder leave today for a ten days' visit to the St. Mary's Centennial celebration.

This is the Way to Make Every Buy a Bargain

BUY ADVERTISED GOODS. Only good goods, fairly priced, can stand the spotlight of publicity.

A merchant or manufacturer would not dare to advertise merchandise that is poor in quality, poor in make or that will not give reasonable wear. The penalty of such tactics is too heavy. No goods—and no business concern—can thrive under the weight of public condemnation.

A merchant places the whole reputation of his business at stake every time he advertises. Naturally enough, he is careful of what he says and when his statement is placed in the newspaper—where all in town may read—so that any untruth in it will be known to all of his employers and most of his friends—then you may be sure he is doubly careful.

When you buy advertised goods you get a bargain because they must be as advertised.

So it pays you to read advertisements. Advertising protects you.

Read the advertisements in the Daily Register and get the best of the bargain.

Farmer's Wife Says She Can't Express Her Gratitude To Tanlac—Health Fine Now

"Tanlac restored by health just perfectly two years ago and I have felt splendid in every way to this good day," declared Mrs. H. A. Maginnis, of East Dubuque, Ill., the wife of a retired farmer.

"I certainly do feel thankful to Tanlac," she said, "because I don't believe I could have lived much longer. I had chronic stomach trouble for nearly five years, and at times had such acute attacks of indigestion I thought I would surely die. The pains and cramps were almost unbearable, and I felt so bloated up from gas on my stomach that it seemed like I was being smothered to death. My nerves finally collapsed and sometimes I lay awake all night long without closing my eyes. I was at my wits end to know what to do and I became almost desperate."

"Tanlac certainly was a blessing to me. I felt relief immediately and, as I look back now, I just think it is wonderful how Tanlac restored my health. My appetite returned and, while at first I was almost afraid to eat, I soon found that nothing hurt me and ever since then I have felt perfectly well in every respect. I wish I could say just what is in my heart about Tanlac so everybody could know just what a grand medicine it is."

Tanlac is sold in Richmond by Stockton and Son, and leading druggists.

YORKTOWN MAY BE MADE SHRINE

Scene of Cornwallis' Surrender to Be Preserved as One of Nation's Historic Spots.

SECRET BASE IN WORLD WAR

Harbor Sheltered Greater Part of Atlantic Fleet, the Anchorage Being Alluded to in Official Communications as "Base 2."

Washington.—The historic battle-field of Yorktown, Va., where the British general Cornwallis surrendered, and where for all practical purposes the American Revolution was brought to a victorious conclusion, may soon be made into a shrine to share popularity with Bunker Hill, Valley Forge and Mt. Vernon.

The little village and its surroundings form the subject of the following bulletin issued from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society:

"Though Yorktown was not a thriving community nor a place noted for its accessibility during Revolutionary days, it was relatively much more important and much less remote from the daily life of the country than it has been at any time since. Most other American towns were small in those days, ports were few, and railroads were unthought of. As cities have sprung up where there were only hamlets or patches of wilderness before, and as railroads have brought even the two oceans relatively closer together, Yorktown, at a point where little commerce has been developed, and without rail connections, has become in effect more and more remote, and its character as a sleepy village has become more and more emphasized."

Site of Surrender a Tiny Village.

"The Yorktown of today is a community of less than 250 inhabitants with a few fine old colonial homes and a number of less pretentious dwellings. The nearest railroad lies eight miles to the south. In the town is a monument erected in 1881 on the one hundredth anniversary of the surrender of the British. As a reminder of the early importance of Yorktown there still exists the first customs house in the United States. Near the village are remains of the forts and redoubts whose capture by the Revolutionary soldiers and their French allies marked the real birth of the United States. The scene of Cornwallis' surrender—which was by proxy through his General O'Hara—is believed to be in the open country just south of the village."

"Yorktown is on a narrow peninsula lying between the wide estuaries of the James and York rivers, and is where the latter meets Chesapeake bay. Cornwallis, after scouring Virginia, burning houses, killing and driving off stock, and capturing large numbers of slaves, retired down the peninsula to Yorktown. Lafayette, with a handful of American soldiers, followed at a distance. It was when this situation was pointed out to Washington that he was persuaded to abandon his plan to attack New York and instead to take his own forces from West Point and Rochambeau's division from Providence, R. I., to stake all on a battle in the south. The arrival of De Grasse with a French fleet in the Chesapeake, blocking the entrance to that bay and preventing reinforcements reaching Cornwallis, made the defeat of the latter inevitable."

Harbor Used in World War.

"It is not strange that Cornwallis considered Yorktown a good location for military headquarters in spite of the ease with which the peninsula might be blockaded. It possesses a truly remarkable water harbor, and Cornwallis counted on the maintenance of communication by water with the heavy British forces in New York."

"Yorktown's harbor was put to good use during the World war and so for the second time played an important part in the country's martial history. In the month of the York river opposite the famous village the greater part of the Atlantic fleet at times rode at anchor. There, behind the defenses at the entrance to the Chesapeake and further protected by nets and patrols across the mouth of the York, dreadnaughts and lesser vessels were safe from molestation by enemy submarines. Thousands of men were intensively trained for naval duty at this anchorage while the whereabouts of the fleet was kept a profound secret. The Yorktown anchorage was alluded to in official communications throughout the war only as "Base 2."

Bride Faces Stern Reality.

Charleston, W. Va.—Robert Ira Price didn't think he would have to ask his bride to ride home in a street-car, but after Rev. Guy Coffman had performed the ceremony at the Humphrey Memorial church, the wedding party which had accompanied Price and Miss Daisy Lee Webb, found that someone had stolen the big touring car which was to carry them to the bride's home for a reception.
